

The Willington Conservation Commission presents:

Winter Tree Identification

February 1st (Sun.), 1:00 pm – 2:30 pm in Fenton Ruby Park with Tom Worthley

A winter hike in the park, or anywhere for that matter, takes on new dimensions and interest as you learn more about the natural world around you.

Please join UConn Extension System Stewardship Program Forester Tom Worthley for a free guided walk among the trees in the park.

Tom will share his expert knowledge on the forest's largest inhabitants, teaching us how to identify different tree species by looking at the tree's shape and noting features on the twigs and bark. With a little practice, you'll be identifying most trees at a glance as you enjoy your hike through the winter landscape.

Dress warmly for February's winter weather and meet us in the Fenton Ruby Park parking lot.

Please call Chris at 429-8384 for more information.
